General Information

1. Supported Activities

- Traineeship mobility (2-12 months)
- Traineeship for recent graduates (2-12 months)

Student Traineeship mobility can be carried out within the framework of long-term mobility. A student internship is a practical training related to their studies that takes place abroad, which is included in the curriculum or is freely chosen, with a duration of at least 2 months and a maximum of 12 months.

Student Traineeship mobility can take place in any field and cycle of study, including doctoral programs. The foreign internship must be part of the student's study program leading to a degree in any study cycle, and the sending institutions must accept it and fully comply with the curriculum structure. The process of credit acquisition and recognition must be recorded in the student's mobility study agreement.

For Traineeship for recent graduates, application, and selection of students must occur while they still hold active student status, in the year of graduation, and the mobility must be completed within one year following graduation, taking into account the project's completion date. In this case, due to the nature of the mobility, the sending institution is exempt from credit recognition requirements. The policy goal of the recent graduate internship is to enable the student to gain international experience after obtaining their degree but before entering the job market, thereby supporting their employability or further studies.

The duration of the Traineeship for recent graduates will be counted within the maximum 12 months in the cycle in which the internship application is submitted. The physical mobility period can be interrupted. The duration of the interruption will not count towards the duration of the mobility activity. In the case of internships, company/organizational leave will not be considered as an interruption period. During this leave, the support will be maintained. The leave counts towards the minimum duration of the internship.

Credit recognition requirements also apply to internships.
